To the GRADS

Canada is 100 years old. Down through the corridors of time a century is but a thought. What is the role of one individual in the shaping of his country's destiny when one's life span is less than a century?

No matter how great or small an individual's existence, he can, with all the knowledge acquired in school, with the abilities and talents developed in school and at work, with his hopes and prayers, make an impression in his world.

Who is to say what is the future of each St. Joseph's Graduate in the second hundred years of Canada's existence? Through diligence and hard work each and every graduate will meet his responsibility to Canada, be it in the realm of politics, science, religion, industry, or commerce. The future is yours! . . . Canada is yours! Canada's position in the year 2067 rests in the hands of each and everyone of you. Good Luck!

Greetings from Your Superintendent

I appreciate the opportunity of offering congratulations to the 1968 Graduating Class of St. Joseph High School. During your years in this school, you have maintained high standards in both your academic and personal activities. I am quite sure that St. Joseph School, your parents, and your fellow students are proud of you. It is our hope that in the years that lie ahead, you will continue the same high standards.

There is much to be done in our world to eradicate the evils of poverty, ignorance, suffering and hatred and you who have had many opportunities denied to others, must lead the way. To make the world a better place in which to live will not be an easy task, but we are firmly convinced that you will be able to do it. There is so much to be done and you, who have responsibilities, might make the words of Robert Frost, the poet, your goal:

*"The woods are lovely, dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,

Principal's Message

During the past year Canada concluded her Centennial activities. It was a year of special programs, activities, tours and assemblies in which Canadians proved to the world their pride in our country. Many Canadians selected as their goal — to know Canada and their fellow Canadians better. The success of Expo '67 was one indication of the strong feeling Canadians have for their country.

Our own school life this year has been affected by a 50% increase in enrollment and the partial use of a new wing. Although our school was forced to operate for several months without a functioning P.A. and clock system, with the patient co-operation of students and staff we adjusted to the situation. We have had many visitors to our school, all of whom admire our facilities and comment on the friendliness and courtesy of our students.

To the graduates, I wish you every success in the future. I would wish also that in this age of increased communication between religions and races you continue your concern for your fellowmen.

For those students who are returning to St. Joseph I challenge you to make next year an even fuller more rewarding year than the past one.

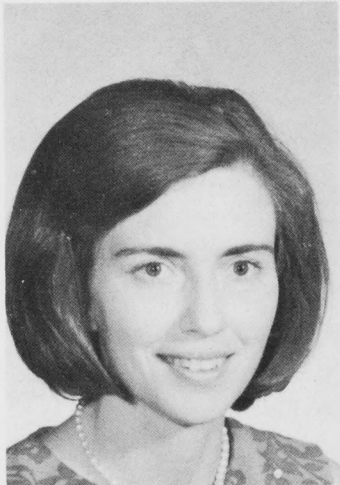

Good luck and God bless you all.

Martin Luther King, Apostle of Non-Violence

WASHINGTON — Almost from the moment when he erupted into the national consciousness as an apostle of non-violence, Dr. Martin Luther King brooded about the possibility of violent death.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner had before him the example of his great mentor, Mohandas K. Gandhi, who died in India in 1948 at an assassin's hand.

Mr. King was stabbed in 1958 in a Harlem department store as he sat autographing copies of Stride Toward Freedom, the book that described his first great triumph as a civil rights leader — the boycott and subsequent integration of the Montgomery, Ala., bus system.

MISSED HEART

The blade, thrust into his chest by Izola Ware Curry, a 42-year-old Negro woman, just missed his heart. Dr. King spent three hours in an operating room and many days recovering.

Even before that, at the height of the Montgomery struggle, persons unknown threw a bomb that did not detonate on the front porch of the King's Montgomery home.

By telephone, by letter, by at least four other failed attempts on his life, the threats came, until it became quite natural to him to say, as he did in Albany, Ga., in 1962:

"It may get me crucified. I may even die. But I want it said, even if I die in the struggle, that 'he died to make men free.'"

IMITATOR OF CHRIST

Following the classic Christian way, Dr. King saw himself as an imitator of Christ and professed his willingness to follow in the footsteps of his Master, even if the path led ultimately to death on his own Calvary.

As the civil rights movement became increasingly militant in 1966 and thereafter, and the shouts of Black Power displaced the strains of 'We Shall Overcome,' Dr. King scarcely wavered from his insistence that "non-violent protest is the most effective weapon of an oppressed people."

Though his refusal to adapt his methods of protest towards courses advocated by more militant Negro spokesmen may have cost him some support among militants, a Michigan sociologist reported last fall that Dr. King was more popular and considered more effective than Stokely Carmichael among residents of riot-torn areas of Detroit.

BRIDGE-BUILDING

At the same time Dr. King remained probably the single most effective bridge between the nation's increasingly estranged Negro and white communities.

This power of bridge-building rose to two great climaxes during Dr. King's career — the great outpouring of humanity that was the 1963 civil rights march on Washington, and the 1965 voters registration campaign in Selma, Ala., that culminated in the triumphant 50-mile Selma-to-Montgomery march.

"I have a dream," said Dr. King on the torrid August day in Washington, "that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal.'"

CONTENT OF CHARACTER

"I have a dream that my four children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character . . ."

"I have a dream that one day, on the red hills of Georgia, the sons of former slaves, and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down at the table of brotherhood."

Dr. King was a son of Georgia, a preacher's boy. He was ordained to the Baptist ministry in 1948, when he was only 19, in his father's church, Ebenezer Baptist Church of Atlanta.

As a youth, Dr. King's life was average and middle class, and since there were few economic worries, a usually happy time. But M. L., as his family and friends called him, early learned the facts of segregated life.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Dr. King was given a testimonial dinner in an Atlanta hotel that was attended by leading citizens, white and Negro, of his native Georgia and of the nation. The occasion was to honor Dr. King for having won the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

Dr. King was summoned to Stockholm to receive his prize on Dec. 10, 1964, because he had provided his people with a powerful new weapon — non-violent protest — in their crusade for full American citizenship. In doing so, he captured the imagination and admiration of millions of people around the world.

As Dr. King's fame grew, he became an international hero. He was invited to the Ghana independence day celebrations. He toured Europe, Asia and South America, and in 1964, was granted an audience by Pope Paul VI, who pledged to support the Negro freedom movement.

POTENT POLITICALLY

It was perhaps inevitable that Dr. King and the freedom movement he led would become potent political forces by 1960. During the election campaign that year, after he was jailed for speeding in a Georgia sit-in struggle, the late John F. Kennedy called Mrs. King to express his concern. Mr. Kennedy's brother and campaign manager, Robert, called the judge in the case to inquire about bail. Dr. King was released.

In the view of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, his own Republican candidate for the presidency, Richard M. Nixon, made a costly strategic error by not also identifying himself with Dr. King.

OWN ERRORS

Dr. King himself made some serious strategic errors, according to some of his critics, who felt that in his new militancy after 1960, he jumped too far, too soon and with improper preparation. They referred to the freedom demonstrations in Albany, Ga., and in Birmingham.

Dr. King was also accused of mismanaging the civil rights onslaught on Birmingham, the most segregated of major Southern cities. Non-violent though his demonstrations were billed, violence of the ugliest sort erupted. Police used water hoses and vicious police dogs to quell Negro rioting.

HEROIC STATURE

Despite the violence, however, Dr. King continued to take on heroic stature in the eyes of Negroes and non-segregationist Americans, who believed his non-violent Birmingham crusade had been turned into tragedy by the segregationists.

Martin Luther King Jr. was born Jan. 15, 1929, the first son and second child of his parents.

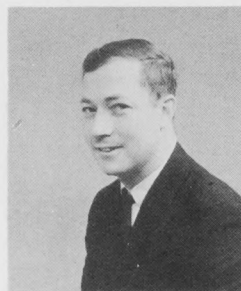

He died April 4, 1968, the victim of an assassin with a gun, in Memphis, Tenn.

Student Union President's Message ...

Regretfully, another year draws to a climactic close and we can look back with a feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment.

This year, in my opinion, school spirit almost reached its peak. The students enthusiastically attended the regular functions such as basketball, football and floor hockey games. Your support of other projects such as Lit, Klondike Days, Charity Drive, Lowney's Contest, Year Play, Prom and dances was very gratifying.

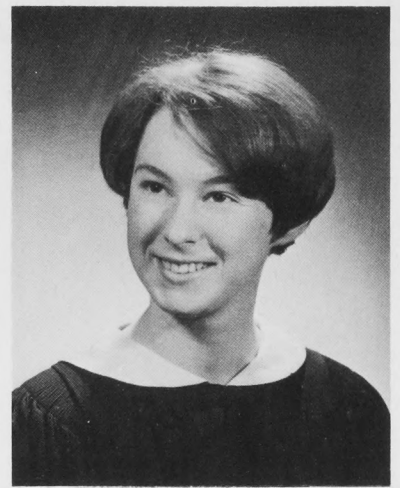

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the administrators, the teachers who helped us with our functions and the students for their co-operation which made my job so much easier. I sincerely hope that my efforts have met with your approval.

IN THREE

YEARS' TIME

One-O-One

Maquette of Centennial Fountain, designed by Lory Lukasewich, Commercial Art 32, to be unveiled in the 101st year of Confederation.

The central theme of the design is based on the initials PX symbolizing Christ, the raison d'être of the Separate System. A supporting design element is created through the use of the letters S.T. and J., signifying St. Joseph. The fountain base symbolizes the world: the world of work and the world of wisdom, in which St. Joseph High School has taken a prominent place. A firm stand in this world and an active communication with this world (symbolized by the water) makes St. Joseph the school we are proud to be associated with.

In Memory of Our Friend

ARTHUR D. BOULAY

Art was about to write his high school finals when the call came to present himself for the final of finals. Our prayers go with him, as his friends and associates we know they are being heard.

Many in the school knew him for many years as he was born in this city where he attended St. Vitals and St. Mark elementary and junior high schools before coming to St. Joseph. He was a good wholesome person who enjoyed the things he did to the fullest. He was an enthusiastic sportsman from the observers stand, not so much a physical competitor, but as a team supporter.

Art, as he was affectionately called by us, was a fine wholesome young man whose varied interests and friendly attitude made him a person who was liked by all. Those privileged to have known him realized always that to walk and talk with him was to have a good companion.

We treasure the memory of him, who was with us ever so short a time. Because his work here was done he left us, we feel a little better for having known him.

May the Just God, who will see us all face to face, reward our friend and school mate with eternal happiness in the great beyond.

The St. Joseph Senior Saints had a fairly successful season. They won three games and lost three. The Saints showed a much improved defense this year, 67 points against compared to last year's 201 points, they also led the league in passing. There was a vast improvement in team play and some individuals improved a great deal and showed their good football talent.

After starting the 1967 season with a complete team of rookies, the Junior Football Saints achieved the reputation of being one of the hardest tackling teams in the league. With many veterans returning, the 1968 version of the Junior Football Saints will attempt to regain their traditional winning ways by pummelling their opponents into the gridiron turf.

1967-68 was an extremely successful, although a bit disappointing, year. The Junior Saints went throughout the year undefeated but lost the final championship game.

BASKETBALL

SENIOR GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAM

The senior girls team had a league record second to none this year. They finished at the top of their league, without a single loss. No other girls team in Edmonton possessed such a record. Due to unfortunate and unavoidable circumstances, St. Joe girls were defeated in the playoffs. All in all, however, a good showing and a good season.

Peter Niewenhyze, St. Joe's junior high jumper in the Provincial finals, June 1, 1968.

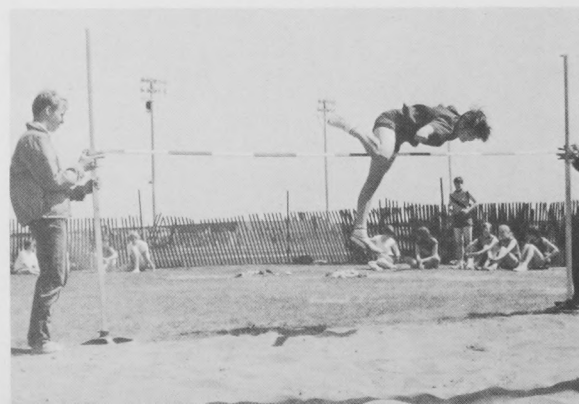

Ihor Broda, St. Joe's intermediate entry in the high and triple jump at the Provincial finals in Calgary, June 1, 1968.

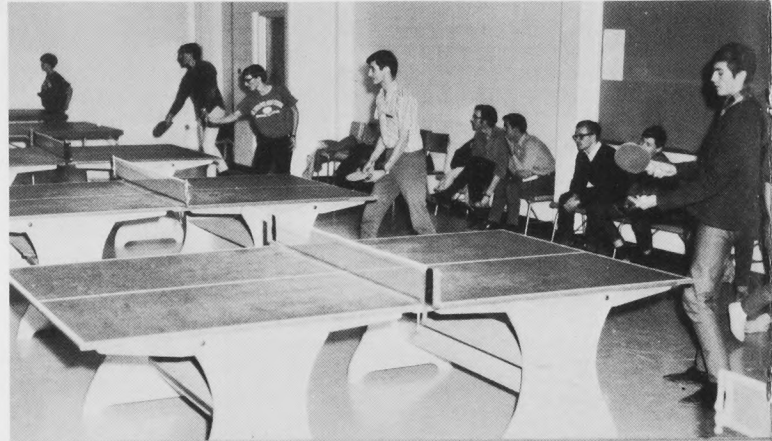

Cathy Devaney, St. Joe's senior sprint entry in the Provincial track and field finals in Calgary, June 1, 1968.

Take a Break From Homework!

Sit back. Take a deep breath. Hold it. Relax. Good. Now you can rest and read The Journal.

To be well informed on what's happening in today's world, you have to read something else besides textbooks.

Like The Journal's Teen Page on Fridays, for instance. It carries stories of special interest to you, with school news from your teen correspondents and regular features like Dance Date and Teen Top Ten.

There are lots of other interesting features in The Journal all week long. Check the headlines and news stories to keep up with the latest happenings. You'll find you're better informed when classwork calls for background knowledge of world events. So relax and read . . .

Many years before Confederation, traders and adventurers of the Hudson's Bay Company helped to shape the history of Canada through exploration and settlement. Since the establishment of the Bay's first department stores—Winnipeg in 1881 and Edmonton in 1890—the Bay has progressed with the country. Today, 100 years after Confederation, the Bay still serves Canadians in its continuing tradition of quality. Your satisfaction is assured when you shop at the Bay.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we (The Staff and Management) of A & W Drive-Ins sponsor this space. We have had the privilege of serving many of you, and are proud to be a part of these memories of your school days.

The pages of this book are a dedication to your way of life for the past several years. In today's world, with the methods of communication and scientific knowledge now achieved, we have been compelled to live closer with people of other nations. No longer should man isolate himself, nor should any loyal Canadian boy or girl be content with doing the minimum.

It is our sincere hope that you never lose faith in yourself or others, and through education may we find better ways of using the abundance of things the Creator has given our great Nation, that we might continue to be proud to call ourselves Canadians.
